

Busting Some Myths about Buying Land

When you're first thinking about buying recreational property, you may hear a number of myths about whether it's a good idea to buy land.

The folks at Realtree United Country have a helpful blog that busts five of the predominant myths out there.

In a nutshell, here are the facts:

- The land-buying process doesn't have to be complex.
- Buying land as an investment can be a smart move if you do your homework and have expert help.
- You don't have to have a ton of money to buy recreational property.
- Buying land can be a better use of money than putting cash into a leased property.
- Understanding the quality of wildlife in a certain area is critical, because not every piece of land is a good hunting property.

79.3 Acres in Carroll County, MS. Listed with PotlatchDeltic Preferred Broker, Tom Smith Land and Homes

The recreational property sales experts in the PotlatchDeltic Preferred Broker Network are experienced myth-busters, helping both novice and repeat land buyers through the process. Call or email one of them to get your own piece of property this fall!